

Emilia Derksen works at Citydeal Estates, a real estate agency on Churchfield Road in London:

“Today was THE day: our first day of work. As I was up early - because I was super excited - I was early at my work placement and had a lonely cup of coffee. However, I shouldn't have been worrying that much: my colleagues - all male - are all such lovely guys (well, actually men).

Firstly, my supervisor Faisal showed me around and explained a few things. Another colleague explained how to register new tenants and post new ads on the market.

I should then start the most boring and annoying task: filing. However, it was not a problem and I was so concentrated that my colleagues had to remind me of the time. Faisal promised I could attend a meeting tomorrow morning if I come earlier. I can hardly wait for it!”

